Director's Welcome

GREG THORPE

On behalf of the board of GAZE,
I'm fiercely proud and buzzing with excitement to introduce you to this year's festival programme.

We invite artists, audiences, friends and supporters to join us for five days and nights of bright lights and adventures in the dark. This is an exciting year of growth and development for Ireland's LGBTQIA film festival. Our visionary Festival Director Greg Thorpe continues to seek out the best Irish and international queer cinema to thrill, challenge and provoke you. We are delighted to welcome our new Festival Manager Sam Ahern as well as an expanded team of brilliant and dynamic festival-makers: it's an honour to be working with them all and you can look forward to getting to know them during the festival. We issued an open call for new board members last year, and received an overwhelming response, which reminded us how important GAZE is to our community. We've been joined by eight new board members who bring a diverse range of arts, film industry, education, financial, legal and media experience: it's a great pleasure to be working with them all and I know GAZE is in strong hands for the years to come.

Our long-standing partnership with lead sponsor Accenture goes from strength to strength. They have become great friends and extraordinary colleagues: we are hugely grateful for their increased support this year and excited to be partnering together in new ways and around the country. At the beating heart of GAZE is a commitment to finding new audiences for the best new Irish film, and supporting a new generation of LGBTQIA film-making talent. We are delighted to welcome Screen Ireland and National Talent Academies as major new supporters for 2024, enabling a dynamic expansion of our artist and audience development activities.

Let's get ready to GAZE.

Chairperson's Welcome

TOM CREED

We are grateful for the Arts Council's continued support. This year, they have made a particular commitment to making GAZE more accessible by enabling a relaxed screening of our Irish Shorts. This screening will feature live Irish Sign Language (ISL) interpretation, open captions and a relaxed environment for festival-goers. We are also implementing other initiatives to increase access for our audiences such as easy-read and large text documents. We are also delighted to develop and grow our partnership with Press Up and The Dean, who provide great hospitality for us and our festival guests. There are many other sponsors, funders and partners who ensure we can continue to support new artists, reach new audiences, and connect with the LGBTQIA community in all its diversity. I want to thank our long-standing Festival Friends as well as everyone who will become a Friend this year for the first time: your dedication as supporters and audiences is a crucial part of who we are.

This year we remember and pay tribute to Edmund Lynch, a great friend of the festival and a trailblazing Irish LGBTQIA pioneer. We miss him and we will celebrate his life and achievements with a screening of his film A Different Country during the festival. Huge thanks and best wishes to the whole festival team including Greg, Sam, James, Samuel, Jack, Patrick, Mayra, Conleth and Jenny, as well as all our festival volunteers, and the brilliant staff of our partner venues Irish Film Institute and Light House Cinema. And a huge thanks to the filmmakers and audiences: you're the reason we keep doing this, and we hope you find much to enjoy and inspire in this year's festival.

Hello friends, and welcome to the GAZE International LGBTQIA
Film Festival 2024.

It's a big one! This year we present 25 international features and 10 eclectic shorts programmes over five days, including Irish, European and World Premieres. We have masterclass conversations with filmmakers, actors, musicians and gamers. We present forgotten gay artists, lesbians from Lesbos, trans women on the catwalk, and trans guys in the sauna. We celebrate Black queer artistry, Bollywood musicals, and old lesbians. We bring you a bisexual music icon, a nude beach, a drag dramedy and queer cheerleaders. We interrogate taboos and we celebrate resistance. We also offer a workshop for film critics, a get-together for festival-goers and filmmakers, four parties (at the last count), a brand new ticketing system for festival bundles and offers, and of course world class cinema from end to end.

We've an incredibly talented team at the helm to bring you this year's event, so let me say thank you and welcome to new Festival Manager Sam Ahern, new Marketing Manager Jack O'Dea, and new Festival Intern, Mayra Xavier. Your commitment, excellence and imagination has re-ignited our enthusiasm. Thank you also to Assistant Programmer James Hudson for consistently unearthing cinematic treasure, and Samuel Foxton who has been with GAZE for over ten incredible years. Samuel not only makes sure we secure 100+ pristine cinema files to enjoy every year, but he is also the talented artist behind our stunning annual festival trailer. Thank you Samuel.

We've also expanded our Board of Trustees, welcoming an amazing team of individuals dedicated to strengthening and future-proofing this great festival. We are lucky to have all of you and I give you each my heartfelt gratitude. There has been sad news too since our last get-together. In October, GAZE lost a dear friend and Ireland lost an icon and trail-blazer when the irrepressible and irreplaceable Edmund Lynch sadly died. We honour Ed's memory at this year's festival with a screening of his ground-breaking documentary, A Different Country, where his work and legacy will be remembered and celebrated. Aside from being at the forefront of queer cinema, the most rewarding thing about directing a film festival is sharing the platform through collaboration. This year we have a plethora of partnerships; some new, others longstanding; bringing comradeship, diversity and community to our programme. A huge GAZE thank you to Queer Spectrum Film Festival, Sporting Pride, Iris Prize, Leathermen of Ireland, Small Trans Library Dublin, aemi, Gay Health Network, TENI, Bealtaine Festival, and Queer Cinema For Palestine.

Above all we have a renewed sense of vigour and excitement to share all things cutting-edge, challenging and fun from the world of LGBTQIA cinema with you, our audience.

This is my third year directing GAZE and it has been a genuine privilege and adventure from the very beginning. Only last summer, Ed Lynch – always the committed GAZE supporter – spoke in one of our workshops.

'Don't forget that you can change the culture,' he reminded us.

So let's do that, and let's change it for the better. We'll see you in the cinema.

Accenture's Welcome

Vanguard Award

2024

At GAZE 2024 we are proud to present the Vanguard Award to writer, director and producer, Andrew Haigh.

Andrew's work, both in and out of the field of queer narrative, has re-set the bar for contemporary storytelling in film. Honing his craft over the past two decades, working in shorts, documentary, television, and feature films, Andrew has shown the true artist's propensity for detail, emotion, and the strangeness of life. His work brings a frank and honest artistry to portraying the lives of the queer community in particular, from the cautious heart-break of Weekend's brief encounter, to the thrilling urban ensemble that was TV's Looking, right up to All Of Us Strangers, a meditation on loneliness, love and lost chances that has touched the hearts of movie-goers across the world.

We were thrilled to host Andrew Haigh for the premiere of All Of Us Strangers earlier this year, and we are so excited to share that Andrew Haigh will return in person for our August festival. Andrew will be in conversation following a screening of All Of Us Strangers at the Irish Film Institute, hosted by friend and collaborator, Russell Tovey. Their conversation will be followed by an audience Q&A, so come prepared with your masterclass questions! In addition, Andrew will host his own conversation with the makers of the moving documentary, Life Is Excellent, portraying the life and work of the artist, David Robillard, where Andrew will be joined by the filmmakers Russell Tovey, Joe Ingham and Susie Hall.

We can't wait to see you there.

Venus Patel

Venus Patel is a transfemme artist of colour working in film and performance. Her art practice stems from her lived experience as an “other”, navigating societal roles of conformity, and its effect on Queer and POC bodily suppression. In 2022, her experimental short film, Eggshells, won the Taylor Art Award (RDS). Her first solo exhibition, Monsters of the Apocalypse, opened last year at Pallas Projects. Patel’s work has been exhibited at the Complex, Butler Gallery, and the Crawford Art Gallery alongside film festivals across Ireland, the UK, Germany, and the US.

Murky Anyango

Murky Anyango is a filmmaker and musician creating films about the trans experience. She graduated from the BCFE Animation course, which shaped her belief that every frame should be a unique painting. Currently, she is concentrating on merging different forms of cinema to create mixed media films capable of depicting experiences in the most honest way possible. Her work has been exhibited in The Complex, Pallas Projects, The Glucksman, and Butler Gallery.

Caleb J. Roberts

Caleb J. Roberts is a queer-trans screenwriter, director, and arts programmer from Belfast. His work has been recognized at the Galway Film Fleadh, Iris Prize and BFI London Film Festival. He has also received distribution with Film4. Caleb is an alumni of the NETWORK@LFF Talent Cohort 2023, X-Pollinator 2024, and is Producer/Programmer at the Outburst Queer Arts Festival.

Queer Spectrum

FILM FESTIVAL

2024 marks an exciting new chapter as Queer Asian Pride Ireland (QAPI) and the Queer Spectrum Film Festival join forces with the GAZE International LGBTQIA Film Festival.

As the founder of QAPI, I believe this collaboration is a significant milestone in our journey of cultural activism. Since moving to Dublin twelve years ago, I have witnessed remarkable transformations in Irish queer culture. As an immigrant queer artist, I've long admired GAZE's contributions to this dynamic cultural landscape. Cinema, especially queer cinema, is a powerful medium for storytelling, educating society, preserving evolving cultural dialogues, and empowering activism. GAZE has been a profound inspiration, fueling my passion for film-making and expanding my artistic horizons.

In Spring 2024, QAPI and the Queer Spectrum Film Festival proudly hosted Ireland's inaugural film festival dedicated to LGBTQIA narratives from around the globe. Queer Spectrum Film Festival was greatly encouraged by Greg, who shared invaluable films from GAZE's archive.

With the GAZE partnership, we plan to take the Queer Spectrum Film Festival across Ireland. This year's GAZE+QSFF collaboration will showcase two feature-length films, The Queen Of My Dreams and Riptide, along with the groundbreaking documentary India's First Best Trans Model Agency. Three short films, The Lime Green Shirt, Halfway, and Marigold will be featured.

Like many European countries, Ireland is making strides towards better understanding and acknowledging the immigrant LGBTQIA and QPoC community. Yet, this journey has many challenges in Ireland. For the Asian LGBTQIA community in Ireland, underrepresentation in community discourse, art, and academia often leads to the unique issues faced by Asian LGBTQIA individuals being overlooked. That makes cultural activism and artistic collaborations essential to harvest inclusion. The collaboration between GAZE and QSFF is a vital step towards acknowledging and celebrating the exceptional contributions of the Asian LGBTQIA community. QAPI and QSFF are thrilled about this venture and the positive impact it will have on Irish queer culture.

Pradeep Mahadeshwar, Co-Organiser Queer Spectrum Film Festival

SPECIAL EVENTS

Special Events, Guests, Workshops and Parties.

This year at GAZE we have assembled more special events, talks, parties and cute dates than ever before. Opening the fest with blood, sweat and cheerleaders, BACKSPOT director D.W. Waterson will perform a DJ set after their film screening to get us in the mood to GAZE all weekend.

Join us on Saturday, Sunday and Monday mornings of the festival for Café au GAZE, where we will invite attending artists, filmmakers and industry professionals of the festival to talk about their practice and to share behind-the-scenes stories from their work. Each morning will be hosted by a local LGBTQIA filmmaker and Festival Director Greg Thorpe. This series is not to be missed by the artists, the film lovers and those of us who love to hear the gossip. This year we are calling on aspiring or established film critics to join us for a Film Critic's Workshop to hone your reflective skills and write critically about contemporary queer cinema. As Hollywood grapples with diversity, the accompanying art form of film criticism also faces issues of representation, as the vast majority of professional film critics are straight, white men. Our Film Critics Workshop explores the role of the film critic, explains the vital need for queer criticism to both support the work of LGBTQIA filmmakers and illuminate queer cinema for readers, and features some workshop elements for aspiring film writers.

We have two exhibitions at the Light House cinema including work by both Brian Teeling and the Halloween collective featuring Hazel Coonagh, Gerry Lee, Áine Macken and Gabriel Marques. Come for a goo or support your local GAZE by purchasing an original artwork. And finally, this year we are plotting GAZE After Dark – for those who like to party... we've got you covered. We're working with partner venues and local artists to bring you a very special programme of events. Follow us to keep up to date with the latest announcements.

Exhibitions

his year, we have partnered with Dublin-based artists to showcase queer art inspired by the GAZE programme.

The exhibiting work will feature at the Light House Cinema from Monday 29th July to Monday 5th August. Read more about the artists and their work below.

Brian Teeling

Brian Teeling is an Irish multi-disciplinary artist living and working in Dublin. He has no fine art qualifications and is entirely self-taught. Recent achievements include becoming an associate artist with theatre group THISISPOPBABY (2024), an acquisition with The Arts Council of his work Declan Flynn in Dublin (2023), and the release of his third book in the glow of a frozen flame with Jennie Taylor and Crawford Art Gallery, Cork (2024).

For this edition of GAZE, Brian will be looking at the photographic archive of Christopher Robson (1941 – 2013) at the National Library of Ireland. This collection documents the early years of LGBTQ+ activism, pre and post-decriminalisation, and an intimate portrayal of a life well lived by such an important activist.

Halokween

Established in October 2022, the Halokween Collective is a group of visual artists, messers and friends. Consisting of Hazel Coonagh, Gerry Lee, Áine Macken and Gabriel Marques, they have covered many themes in past exhibitions ranging from Irish mythology, fantasy, sexuality, horror, tarot, witchery and identity.

From watercolour paintings, and fantastical illustrations to esoteric drawing and photographic portraiture, each of the artists has a unique style. All pieces exhibited will have queer cinema at their heart and core – the perfect accompaniment for your film at the Light House Cinema.

Volunteer

OPEN CALL

there's a light (Unreal Shorts)

Our Volunteers are the everyday family members of our community.

Mothers, brothers, sisters, sons, grandmothers, friends, mentors, lovers or sponsors - found in all ages, occupations, identities & backgrounds, generously lending themselves to staffing various departments and venues for the festival period. Their passion can be felt everywhere from the lobbies welcoming the patrons, to assisting with back-of-house duties with the festival venues and marketing and production roles, to liaising with our guests in hospitality. The Family That Plays Together, Stays Together!

Volunteering is more than just a fantastic way to experience the cinematic celebration that the festival brings to Dublin each year, but it presents a chance for those involved to become a 'community' that evolves far beyond the dates of the festival into the social and professional circles of The Arts & LGBTQIA Scene. At GAZE we support you for being you, your choice, your journey, and your right to be yourself regardless of social or familial barriers – we count ourselves and the volunteering programme as one of the vital step stones for you to meet like-minded fellow peers who you can share your experiences, knowledge and questions with.

At GAZE we look out for each other and bring the best that you can be out in you. If you're interested in volunteering with GAZE then contact us at info@gaze.ie.

You must be over 18 to apply.

GAZE On Tour

PRESENTED IN PROUD PARTNERSHIP WITH CORK PRIDE.

Cork welcomes us once again into its loving arms this year, as GAZE returns to Cork LGBT+ Pride Festival with a selection of our most heartwarming and eye-opening queer cinema.

Our feature festival pick this year is Corey Sherman's Big Boys, one of the most lovable, smart and authentic gay comedies in years. Following fat queer kid Jamie (Isaac Krasner) on a supremely awkward and enlightening camping trip as he grapples with a newfound attraction to his cousin's boyfriend, Big Boys is a coming-of-age comedy sure to delight gays of all shapes and sizes.

There's a delightfully diverse mix in our Irish shorts selection with rekindled romances and tender first loves, a reality-bending odyssey into a new queer religion, and experimental documentaries bringing marginalised voices to the forefront of Irish queer culture. Featuring two short films screened by our 2024 partners Queer Spectrum Film Festival—Skin to Skin Talks and Daisy: Prophet of the Apocalypse—this block brings some big and beautiful ideas about Ireland's forgotten past, challenging present, and fantastical future.

Accessibility

AT GAZE 2024

GAZE is dedicated to fostering a space where audiences can comfortably celebrate queer cinema.

This year, we are excited to introduce a second screening of Irish Shorts with access elements. This will be a relaxed screening with Irish Sign Language (ISL) interpreters, integrated captions, dim lighting, reduced volume, and a welcoming environment where audience members are free to move, express themselves, and take breaks as needed.

To ensure an inclusive and accessible experience for attendees, GAZE is committed to removing barriers that might prevent individuals from participating in the Festival. We will be producing easy read documents with plain language, short sentences, and a clear structure. Large text documents will also be available for people with visual impairments. Our website has been re-built from the ground up, and is now fully compliant with WCAG accessibility guidelines.

A block of priority seating has been allocated for audience members who wish to be closer to the ISL interpreters. If you rely on ISL, please purchase an 'ISL Priority' ticket, and a member of staff will direct you to your seat at the event.

The New Irish Shorts Access Screening will take place on Sunday 4th August at Light House Cinema Screen 4 at 13:45.

Thursday 1st August

Dir. D.W. Waterson
Canada/ 2023
1h 33m

Are you ready for the greatest queer cheerleader adventure since But I'm A Cheerleader? You've come to the right place. We are majorly excited to open GAZE 2024 with D.W. Waterson's thrill-a-minute lesbian cheer squad drama, Backspot. We are additionally honoured that director D.W. will be with us in person to introduce the film for our Opening Gala, presented in partnership with our friends at Sporting Pride.

Cheerleader Riley (Devery Jacobs) has the chance to cheer for famous all-star squad, Thunderhawks, but she must also navigate her panic attacks, and manage her intense relationship with fellow cheerleader girlfriend Amanda (Kudakwashe Rutendo), all under the watchful eye of their take-no-prisoners Coach McNamara, played to smouldering perfection by Evan Rachel Wood. Queer girls rule the roost, competition is fierce, and female friendships are stretched to breaking in this rollercoaster ride through a world of sporting excellence. The camerawork is incredible, the closing cheer routine, filmed all in one continuous shot, is going to take your breath away. Executive Produced by Elliot Page, the film makes a neat bookend with our Closing Gala to usher in a new generation of LGBTQIA film-making talent.

Presented in partnership with Sporting Pride

Director D.W. Waterson will be in attendance for an introduction to the film, followed by a DJ set.

NEW IRISH SHORTS

SHORT FILMS + Q&A

17:30

Friday 2nd August
Irish Film Institute
Cinema 1
1hr 49m + Q&A

Irish shorts are the beating heart of GAZE, and as always we have spread them throughout our programme in various shorts blocks and pre-feature slots. The six films screened as part of New Irish Shorts represent the breadth of Ireland's film-making talent, concerning lesbian desire, parenthood, drag, HIV, and Gaeilge as a secret sapphic love-language. We are honoured to welcome some of the makers with us for a post-show conversation, so please join us. This year, we are excited to introduce a second screening of Irish Shorts with access elements.

There will be a post-screening Q&A with the filmmakers.

TOPS is a genre-busting documentary exploring the diversity of contemporary trans masc experiences. Fun, clever, heartfelt and satirical, TOPS offers a brilliant pastiche of chaotic, brash, self-deprecating and clueless 1990s/2000s British reality TV. Four interviewees share intimate stories with our invasive, neurotic and yet loveable director/host Ames Pennington. Guests include a powerlifter and Gay Games Olympian, a housing-officer-turned-actor, an Essex filmmaker, and an EDI specialist-slash-occasional model. TOPS makes space for conversations around the vulnerability of top surgery with those who've been there, in a gorgeous celebration of trans masc identity. George Platt Lynes is the brilliant American gay photographer you've almost certainly never heard of. By day, Lynes was one of the most sought after celebrity and fashion editorial photographers of his day, but through the rest of his creative life he documented gay men from the 1930s to the 1950s with a breadth of artistry that places him amongst the truly great American photographers. His stunning images come to the big screen for the first time in this five star documentary.

A friend of Gertrude Stein and Alfred Kinsey, and a key figure of the New York scene, the film explores just how such a treasure trove of queer imagery could have almost been lost, and imagines what's inside the one remaining box of materials marked DO NOT OPEN. A feast for the eyes and a fascinating journey into gay history, Hidden Master will put George Platt Lynes in the pantheon of greats where he belongs.

At the dawn of the new millennium, Canadian musician Merrill Nisker unleashed the mighty Peaches onto an unsuspecting world with her soon-to-be iconic album, The Teaches of Peaches. Minds were duly blown. Berlin was the centre of the universe and electroclash was the sound of the clubs. Bi, beautiful, bolshy, and brilliant, Peaches was a musical dynamo that gave a kick up the rear to the boys club of contemporary music.

Twenty-plus years later, this heart-racing documentary travels back to the early days of Peaches and traces the artistic journey of this musical dynamo as the queer feminist electro punk we deserved. Corey Sherman's coming of age tale is simply one of the most lovable, smart and authentic gay comedies in years. Excited 14-year-old Jamie heads out for a camping weekend with his pain-in-the-ass brother Will and their cool beloved older cousin Allie. While Will tries to cajole Jamie to double date the girls from the campsite, Jamie has become oddly transfixed by Allie's kind, handsome and bear-ish boyfriend, Dan. A confusing and supremely awkward trip unfolds as Jamie grapples with this new found attraction and the realisation it hints at. The clumsiness of teenage desire hits perfectly home throughout this film. The script is a dream and this is most definitely a story where audiences laugh with the fat queer kid, not at them. The central performance by Isaac Krasner as a completely adorable Jamie needs all of the trophies.

SHORT FILMS PRESENTED

Light House Cinema

Screen 3

1hr 8m + in-conversation

A constellation of films that move in and out of relationships with each other, Ursa Minor is this year's selection of artist and experimental film brought together by aemi for GAZE. Bound up with each other through shifting ideas of landscape, death and stardom, the works in this programme from Colm Higgins, Jennifer Mehigan, P. Staff, Kenneth Anger and Juana Robles invoke dream-like states where quotidian practices like getting dressed or making butter assume queer and otherworldly qualities. Collisions of private and public, material and immaterial proliferate throughout and the pain and suffering endured by the body is pierced by fleeting moments of pleasure, interspecies kinship and purposeful abandon. aemi is an Arts Council-funded organisation dedicated to the support and development of artist film in Ireland. For more details visit www.aemi.ie

There will be a post screening Q&A with filmmakers.

The Legend of the Dun Cow

Colm Higgins/ Ireland/ 2024/ 19m

A camp and luscious exploration of butter and the sensorial experience of agricultural practice. Combining intense documentary footage with tableaus and original music, the film is a playful take on the place of the cow in the Irish consciousness.

Honeysuckle Joyride

Jennifer Mehigan/ Ireland/ 2022/ 13m

Honeysuckle Joyride is a commissioned video essay made in response to Bassam Al-Sabah's show I AM ERROR which opened at Gasworks London in 2021. The essay considers themes of decay, inter-species kinship and the Irish landscape through a post-humanist lens. Footage of various locations around the island are layered with computer-generated imagery, uncovering personal or domestic materialities of queerness, grief and horror as they intersect with the screen, and ideas of truth and reality in a space where public and private spheres are constantly colliding with and abstracting each other.

Hevn

P. Staff/ UK/ 2022/ 5m

Combining digital and analogue film-making techniques with poetry, hand-painted animation and industrial sound, Hevn explores pleasure and pain in sick or debilitated bodies, with Staff's ongoing interest in the volatility of queer and trans bodies. Glimpses of footage – a shower scene, traffic, friends gathering – are obscured and revealed by layers of hand painted film and lettering, eventually giving way to a titular poem that asks what happens to us in states of dreaming, volatility, inebriation and exhaustion.

Puce Moment

Kenneth Anger/ US/ 1949/ 6m

Made over a decade before the original publication of his notorious Hollywood Babylon, underground filmmaker Kenneth Anger produced this short film, intending it to form part of a longer project. Starring Yvonne Marquis, the film follows her around her apartment as she gets dressed and ends just before she goes out to walk her four Borzoi dogs. Shot in colour in the late 1940s and featuring a psychedelic folk rock soundtrack from the 1960s, this is an uncanny invocation of decadence and decline.

Alicia

Juana Robles/ Ireland/ 2024/ 25m

Originally shot on Super 8mm film and partially blown up to 16mm for the creation of collages made up of abstract and composed photograms, the film explores in a medium specific way the self-experimental search for artistic, gender and sexual identity of Zurich-based movement artist/teacher and former architect Toma Alice Péronnet (they, them, theirs).

'Impossibly handsome Greek men hanging out at the naked gay beach' is the short version of this movie blurb, but in fact The Summer with Carmen is also a clever treatise on the tribulations of queer filmmaking, dating and break-ups, and platonic gay friendship.

Demosthenes (Yorgos Tsiantoulas) plays the perfectly sculpted sexy single hunk drifting through his days of hook-ups, hangouts and dog-sitting. Whilst having philosophical chats on the hot beach with his filmmaker pal Nikitas (Andreas Labropoulos), the friends recount the trials of the previous summer that will soon form the film plot for Nikitas' feature debut.

This meta-fiction approach to the film creates a playfully narcissist self-reflection befitting an ancient Greek drama and riffing on a familiar type of gay self-obsession with very charming results. Funny, original, and oh so hot, pour yourself a drink and get your flights booked for The Summer With Carmen.

The hijras in India are the oldest ethnic transgender community in the world, traditionally considered to be a third gender, alternately feared and respected, and attributed with powers for both good luck and bad. Rudrani Chettri is a hijra activist with a mission – to elevate her fellow hijra, provide them with opportunities above their usual economic hardship, and make them visible on their own terms.

Spanning seven years, Chettri established India's first transgender modelling agency, facing mockery, indifference and joy along the way. Shocking stories of survival sex work and violence are paired with intense community resilience and humour.

From maligned pleasure seekers to disruptive activists, this programme dives deep into an array of subjects that remain risqué within the queer community today. Risky sex takes centre stage in shorts on chemsex and cruising; films face facts with direct action protest and sex worker activism; and intimate relationships are laid bare as an open relationship hits its limits and an illicit coach-athlete affair makes dangerous power plays. With nuance, intimacy and a dose of humour, these seven short films lay bare our blindspots, reminding us who is left out when we only stay in the realms of polite conversation.

Winner of the 2024 German Film Critics Award, Drifter tells the story of a young gay man, Moritz (Lorenz Hotchhuth), who relocates to Berlin to be with his boyfriend. When their relationship falls apart, Moritz decides to remain in Berlin, gradually allowing all of the city's compulsions and temptations to play out on his body and mind.

The various strange and extreme desires of the people he meets fascinate him, as does his own growing appetite for experience. Fleeting connections come and go, Moritz's tattoos gradually multiply, but ultimately the young drifter remains lonely and lustful. Celebrating Edmund Lynch

Edmund passed away in October 2023, a month which held particular significance for him.

50 years earlier, that same month, Edmund began his long journey of campaigning for LGBTQIA rights with the establishment of the Sexual Liberation Movement at Trinity College Dublin. Shortly afterwards, Edmund would go on to attend the first ever Gay Rights conference on the island of Ireland in Coleraine in November 1973, later helping to organise the first symposium on homosexuality in Trinity College Dublin in February 1974. A few months later, in a significant development for the gay community in Ireland, Edmund, along with a small number of individuals, including David Norris, Clem Clancy and Sean Connolly, amongst others, set up the Irish Gay Rights Movement (IGRM). The IGRM was the first openly gay rights organisation in the Republic of Ireland and something Edmund was very proud of. Earlier this year, events took place to mark 50 years since the IGRM's foundation, a milestone Edmund would dearly have liked to see.

Remembering and marking these milestones is important. We should never forget our history or where we have come from. Edmund, more than most, knew the significance of documenting our stories to ensure that future generations knew the struggles those before them had to fight. So much of what we find in the archives today is a direct result of Edmund and the many hours he put in collecting the material. One of his greatest legacies, and something we should all be extremely grateful to him for, is the oral interviews he conducted with hundreds of Irish LGBTQIA individuals, stories that otherwise would have been lost or forgotten but for Edmund. Edmund has created an invaluable oral history archive that ensures our past is not and will never be forgotten.

Edmund had a strong personality, he could be difficult and stubborn, something he was the first to admit, but he was primarily motivated in advancing the rights of a minority group. He did not seek the limelight nor recognition for all that he did. In saying that, there is no doubt that Edmund would be extremely touched and honoured that the GAZE film festival is acknowledging his immense contribution to LGBTQIA life in Ireland as part of the 2024 festival. The documentary you will see today is just one example of Edmund's wonderful legacy and contribution to Irish life. He was, in many respects, a trailblazer.

Thank you, Edmund.

"I was out to tell people's histories, and what life looked like to them."

We honour our departed friend, activist, broadcaster and filmmaker, Edmund Lynch with a special commemorative screening of his landmark documentary A Different Country. The film recalls the humble but committed beginnings of an emerging gay rights movement, from a small meeting in October 1973 – 'David Norris late as usual!' – to decriminalisation and the blossoming LGBTQIA movement in Ireland today. The film premiered at GAZE in 2016 and it seems only right to revive it again today. Ed Lynch's pivotal role in the movement is the legacy of a lifetime, and this time capsule historic documentary we hope is a fitting tribute to his memory.

We are honoured to present this screening with our Festival Friends, of whom Ed was a proud member, and we welcome anyone who would like to remember Ed's life and work with a few words after the screening.

Elliot Page gives a delicate but defiantly star turn in his first feature role as a trans man since coming out in 2020. Sam (Page) is facing a nerve-shredding experience familiar to many queer people – returning home to a family occasion after a period of estrangement. What begins as a gentle reunion drama soon unravels, and in his time-out from familial stresses, Sam runs into a former hometown lover, Katherine, played by the brilliant Hillary Baack.

The nostalgia of their younger days threatens to sweep them both away, but the world has changed and so have they. Close To You's improvised script and close co-production with the actors and director Dominic Savage is a model of queer film-making that lends the piece an intimate natural realism that is such a deep pleasure to sink into. Page is a star for his time and this film seems a perfect way to close out our festival and welcome in another new era in LGBTQIA cinema. See you at the Closing Gala.
